EFFORTS

Now Being Made to Clear Name of Lewis of Charge of Murder

FINDS CLUE IN CLEVELAND

Relatives and Friends of Dead Man Follow Up the Story That Two Men Were Seen Near Philadelphia Model's Home On Night of Murder—Investigation Renewed

(Associated Press Telegram)
Pittsburgh, Jan. 9.—The movement to clear the name of Bernard W. Lewis of the suspicion that he murdered Mabel Colbert at her apartment in Philadelphia before taking his life in Atlantic City last week, took form today when a number of his close friends, including his attorney, Robert K. Dodds, began the investigation of a report that two men had seen a man leaving the woman's apartment shortly after the murder was believed to have been committed.

This story came to James F. McFadyen, general manager of the Union Stock Yards, in a letter from Cleveland, the writer asking that his name be kept secret until he could have an opportunity to see a photograph of Lewis and his companions saw leaving the place was the Pittsburgh broker. It was expected by Lewis' friends that this phase of the matter would be cleared up before night fall, as the photograph was taken to Cleveland this morning by a representative of the Lewis family.

It is expected that all phases of the investigation set on foot today will not be completed for a week or more, as an effort will be made to trace Lewis from last November when he left Pittsburgh for Chicago and the news came of his death in Atlantic City.

CLUE IN CLEVELAND

(Associated Press Telegram)
Cleveland, Jan. 9.—George Lancaster of Pittsburgh, who came here last night with a photo of Bernard W. Lewis in an effort to locate a Cleveland man who had said he believed he could clear up Lewis' connection with the Mabel Colbert murder in Philadelphia was registered at a hotel here today but at night it could not be learned whether he had made any progress in his mission.

Lancaster came to Cleveland after J. F. Fadyen, general manager of the Pittsburgh Union Stock Yards had received a letter from the Cleveland man in question to the effect that he and a friend had been passing the Wilton apartments in Philadelphia the night of the model's murder and had seen two men come out of the building, and if he could see a photograph of Lewis he would be able to determine whether either of these men were the Pittsburgh suicide.

The name of the man who wrote the letter and to whom Lancaster is carrying the picture has been withheld.

NEW EVIDENCE FOUND

(Associated Press Telegram)
Philadelphia, Jan. 9.—District Attorney Rotan today planned to continue his investigation into the mystery surrounding the murder in her apartment on December 29 of Mabel Colbert, the advertising art model. After his examination of a score of witnesses today, Mr. Rotan announced that nothing had been revealed to make him change his opinion that all the circumstantial evidence pointed to Bernard W. Lewis, of Pittsburgh, as the slayer. He added that this investigation would be continued until every woman and man that might throw light on the mystery had been examined. At the same time he gave John Colbert, a brother of the slain girl, authority to conduct a private investigation and to take to the city hall for examination any one he suspected of having knowledge of the case.

Colbert, who is in business in New York, says that he does not believe that Lewis killed his sister. He declared early today that he had discovered new evidence of "the greatest importance." This evidence, he said, came from a source outside of Philadelphia, "and may result in upsetting or weakening everything now thought to be established."

A shirt, collar and necktie found on Lewis after his suicide in Atlantic City were identified last night by a clerk in a haberdashery here as the articles he had sold the Pittsburgher on the day the crime was believed to have been committed. The clerk said according to the police, that Lewis had made the purchases shortly before 11 a. m. December 29. Two other witnesses stated that they had talked over the telephone with Miss Colbert after 11 o'clock that day. The police contend that Lewis bought the articles after the murder was committed and some of those interested in the case claim that at least one link in the chain of circumstantial evidence, which the authorities say convince them that Lewis was the slayer, has been broken.

ALLIED CHIEFS SILENT ON RESULT OF CONFERENCE

(Associated Press Telegram)
Paris, Jan. 9.—While on his way back to Paris from the Rome conference of the entente allies, Premier Briand made the following statement at Turin to a correspondent of the Petit Journal:

"All the chiefs of the allied governments decided to maintain the strictest reserve as to the character and scope of the decisions reached at the conference. I may say, however, that during the negotiations we found that an absolute agreement existed among the allies. We decided to accentuate still further the co-ordination of our efforts."

"Such was the principal object of the conference and it has been realized. I am personally highly satisfied with the results of our meetings and after the conference at Rome I have more than ever a deep conviction of our ultimate victory."

After the premier's arrival in Paris another brief council was held by French ministers in the waiting room at the railroad terminus.

The Petit Parisien says the Rome conference considered three questions—concerning Greece, in regard to which Italy hitherto had made certain reservations concerning the operations on the Macedonian front and concerning greater and more effective unity in the direction of the war.

SLAVS

Driven Across the Putna and Teutons Hammer at New Positions There

REPORT OTHER ADVANCES

Superior Communication Routes of Russians May Save Them From Defeat—Germans Claim to Have Captured 5,500 Prisoners In Yesterday's Drive—Riga Offensive Continues

Events on the European battlefields are summarized from reports from capitals to the Associated Press as follows:

Field Marshal von Mackensen's drive against the Sereth line in southern Moldavia continues to gain ground and the Teutonic thrust against the Moldavian frontier mountain in the flanking operation now under way is likewise showing progress. Pushing northward from Fokshani, the fortress position captured yesterday southwest of the Sereth and near the center of the line, Von Mackensen's troops have driven the Russians across the Putna and are now hammering at a new position they have taken up there.

Further southeast, toward the Danube, the Russians are now beginning to yield again, according to Berlin, losing another town which the Austro-German forces held against counter-attacks delivered last night.

In the Moldavian mountains the advance was chiefly in the Kasino and Suchitza valley. The progress here is necessarily slow because of the rugged terrain and the strong defense offered by the Russians. The German report, however, declares that every day new gains are being scored and maintained despite all difficulties.

One point favoring the Russians in their defense is the superior communication routes they now command. Behind the advancing Teutons the railway lines have thinned out but in the rear of the Russian position lies a net work of roads over which men and supplies may be brought to the front. These are fed both from Kishinev on the east and Czernowitz on the north and an important lateral line running through Teutchiu northeast of Fokshani, northward through Putna to Onca, virtually parallels the present front.

The total of prisoners taken by the Teutonic armies in the operations of yesterday and the previous day is now reported by Berlin as approximately 5,500, together with three cannon and ten machine guns.

While the Russians are continuing their offensive in the region between Divinsk and Riga along the northern end of the line in Russia, they are meeting with no further success in the vicinity of the river Aa, where their recent gains were scored according to Berlin. All the attacks made yesterday were repulsed and the Russians succeeded in regaining an island north of Illukst that had been taken from them last Thursday.

On the Franco-Belgian front there have been only raiding operations and artillery duels.

FREIGHT RATES TO OHIO POINTS ARE UNCHANGED

(Associated Press Telegram)
Washington, Jan. 9.—Existing rail and lake rates from eastern points to Cleveland, Detroit, Cincinnati, Dayton, O., St. Louis and other midwestern cities were upheld today by the interstate commerce commission.

Since railroads sold their lake lines there have been proposals to cancel the rail and lake rates made under the old arrangement. This, the commission found would result in higher combination rates to many points and was not justified.

District Liquor Bill Up For Final Hearing In Senate

(Associated Press Telegram)
Washington, Jan. 9.—The amendment to the Sheppard prohibition bill for the District of Columbia submitting the question to a referendum of the residents of Washington was rejected today in the senate by a tie vote, 43 to 43.

(Associated Press Telegram)
Washington, Jan. 9.—The senate took for final disposition today the District of Columbia prohibition bill under an agreement reached before the Christmas holidays. At that time friends of the measure expressed the fear that postponement might imperil the chances of the bill's passage.

Senator Underwood, of Alabama was expected to renew his efforts to get another vote on his amendment providing for referendum of the prohibition question to citizens of the district. The amendment was defeated when the bill last was under consideration by a tie vote in committee of the whole.

After disposition of the bill today, the senate, under an agreement reached at a caucus of Democrats last night, was to take up the Walsh water power bill.

ADAMSON LAW A WAGE STATUTE ATTORNEYS SAY

(Associated Press Telegram)

Washington, Jan. 9.—The great legal battle over constitutionality of the Adamson law continued in the supreme court today with attorneys for both sides frequently being interrogated from the bench by the justices.

The attack of the railroads upon the law was practically closed and tomorrow the government lawyers will continue final arguments in its defense.

Opening the railroads' case Walker D. Hines, their chief counsel laid stress on the argument that the law is not a constitutional regulation by congress of interstate commerce but merely a wage fixing statute. He denied that congress had the right to fix wages and that there is no analogy between rate and wage fixing.

John G. Johnson, of Philadelphia, was chosen to close the case for the railroads. Arthur Miller, of Kansas City, attorney for the Missouri, Oklahoma and Gulf railroad, whose attack upon the law was chosen to test its national application, will not participate in the oral presentation.

In addition to denying that the law is an "hours of service" statute, the railroads contentions also include assertions that it is workable and capable of enforcement only by judicial interpretation.

That the law operates to increase the wages of the best paid railroad men and therefore discriminates against those receiving less pay was another line of attack taken by the carriers. Its operation it was insisted would add many millions of dollars to railroad expenses, with probable consequent increases of rates.

The railroad employees, the carriers also contended, are not bound by the law to remain in service and not strike, although the law is binding upon the railroads in the mandates enacted when a national railroad strike was threatened last summer.

The roads counsel insisted that the law cannot be upheld upon any theory and asked that circuit judge Hook's decision declaring the law void and enjoining its enforcement be affirmed.

TEUTONS GAIN IN SOUTH; REPULSE SLAVS IN NORTH

(Associated Press Telegram)
Berlin, Jan. 9.—(Wireless to Sayville).—Desperate fighting in the valleys leading into the interior of northern Rumania is reported in today's war office communication. Notwithstanding determined Russian resistance the Teutonic troops stormed defenses on both sides of the Kasino and Suchitza valleys. Field Marshal von Mackensen's troops have captured the Rumanian town of Galabrea and taken more than 5,400 prisoners.

The Russians renewed their attacks yesterday on the northern end of the Ruse-Galician front near the Gulf of Riga. Today's official report says Russian attacks on both sides of the river Aa, were repulsed completely.

RUSSIANS READY TO LAUNCH NEW ATTACK ON RIGA

(Associated Press Telegram)

London, Jan. 9.—The Russians are preparing to launch a great new offensive in the Riga sector, according to a Copenhagen dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph company, quoting German newspaper correspondents at the eastern front.

The Russian great quantities of munitions and backed by large reserves. Near Mitau and south of Higa the artillery fire is reported to have constantly increased on both sides during the last few days and to have become extremely violent. The weather is frosty and clear and the country covered with snow.

The correspondent of the Taegliche Rundschau says that the Russians attempted a surprise on Sunday near the Riga bridgehead. Great masses of the attackers, with white shirts over their uniforms succeeded during the violent snow storm in entering the German trenches on a front of a thousand metres. The correspondent says that evidently an attempt was being made to break through the road between Mitau and Riga. The Germans, seeing the danger, sent all available reserves into the battle, which reached a pitch of tremendous fury. The two armies fought with bombs and bayonets until sunset when, according to the correspondent, the Russians retreated to their previous positions over snow that had been reddened with blood.

The lower house of the legislature at its afternoon session adopted a resolution authorizing the speaker to appoint a committee of five to investigate charges brought against Representative A. H. Herr, republican, of Lima, by C. J. Brotherton, democrat, of the same city. Brotherton was a candidate against Herr and is contesting Herr's seat. He charges that Herr violated the corrupt practices law by spending more than $250 in his candidacy.

Both houses this afternoon voted that when they adjourn today they would adjourn until 5 p. m. next Monday.

MESSAGE

Of Gov. Cox to Assembly Urges Rigid Investigation of Election Expenses

URGES REVISION OF LAWS

Reiterated His Faith In New Laws Which He Recommended Four Years Ago, Many of Which Were Passed and Have Stood the Test of Time—Legislature Recessed

Columbus, O., Jan. 9.—A legislative investigation of the campaign expenses in the recent election was recommended by Ohio's new governor, James M. Cox, in his first message to the eighty-second general assembly of Ohio today.

Following a precedent set by him four years ago, the governor appeared in person before the legislature in joint session to deliver his message. He related his record of four years ago with reference to new laws called for by the new constitution of Ohio and enacted during his first administration.

"These laws," said the governor, "have stood the test of time and have successfully run the gauntlet of sustained, insidious and artful opposition." He urged the legislators to "make sure that the revision made in the laws is but the logical adjustment of an unaltered principle to changing conditions."

Governor Cox laid particular emphasis upon his request for a legislative investigation of election expenses, declaring that the safeguarding of the suffrage thought of the state makes it necessary.

"Human frailties should not be played upon by vast treasuries of money advanced by men or movements whose huge disbursements can hardly be looked upon as of patriotic inspiration," said the governor.

"It is not necessary," he continued, "to expend large amounts of money for the promotion of a worthy cause, and inversely, any cause or candidacy having behind it unprecedented financial support is likely to be regarded with suspicion by the public through legislation, he necessary, to restrain irresponsible organizations whose existence and activities are born of a hidden design conceived by some interest, afraid to operate in the open."

He recommended the appointment of an investigating committee with the power to employ counsel, and the authority to summon person and papers and to swear witnesses "in order that it might be known just what organizations have been entering into campaign activities, and how much money they expended and collected also the names of the contributors." He suggested that the investigation should extend to candidates as well as to organizations.

"The facts as adduced by an investigation," said the governor, "will be a safe guide as to the necessity of strengthening the corrupt practices act, or more rigorously enforcing existing law, or both."

Governor Cox appeared at his office shortly after 9 o'clock this morning, went before the joint session of the legislature to deliver his first message.

After hearing Governor Cox deliver his message, both houses of the legislature recessed at 11:30 o'clock until 1:30 o'clock this afternoon.

The hall of the house of representatives was crowded during the reading and frequently points in the messages were warmly applauded. Soon after 10 o'clock the members of the senate filed into the chamber, taking seats with representatives. Many women were in the galleries.

It was announced today that the legislature is not yet ready to appoint standing committees and it was expected that both the house and senate would adjourn this afternoon until probably next Monday when it will be ready to get down to business.

The lower house of the legislature at its afternoon session adopted a resolution authorizing the speaker to appoint a committee of five to investigate charges brought against Representative A. H. Herr, republican, of Lima, by C. J. Brotherton, democrat, of the same city. Brotherton was a candidate against Herr and is contesting Herr's seat. He charges that Herr violated the corrupt practices law by spending more than $250 in his candidacy.

Both houses this afternoon voted that when they adjourn today they would adjourn until 5 p. m. next Monday.

LAWSON

Agrees to Give Names and Amounts If House Orders Investigation

DEFIES CONTEMPT THREAT

Says Disclosure of Names Now Would Be Disastrous to Country and to Administration—Motion to Cite Him For Contempt Held On Table For Action at Later Time

(Associated Press Telegram)

Washington, Jan. 9.—The leak investigation seemed to make its first progress toward some definite point today when Thomas W. Lawson after much questioning and urging promised that should the house order a formal inquiry he would disclose the name of the cabinet officer, the senator, and the New York broker, who he said a congressman told him, were engaged in a stock gambling partnership and had profited through advance information of President Wilson's peace note.

To disclose the names to the house rules committee Lawson repeatedly refused even confronted with three separate resolutions to put him in contempt, for two reasons.

First, he contended the rules committee had no power to conduct a thorough investigation, including one of the stock exchanges, such as he urged, and he would not be assured of an investigation if he disclosed the names.

Second, Lawson said, he considered that disclosure of the names at this time would have a disastrous effect for the country and the administration.

In preference to that he prefers being punished for contempt of congress.

Congressmen questioned, cross-examined and pleaded in vain, with the Boston financier to give the names of the informing congressman, the cabinet officer or the senator.

"I cannot name the cabinet officer to whom I have referred, without mentioning another official of higher position," said Lawson, "and that would be more serious than if I cast a cloud over the entire congress and was sent to jail myself for life."

All through his testimony Lawson hinted at names "higher up" but no amount of questioning would bring him down to a definite statement. When the committee recessed for lunch the members seemed to think that they had gone as far as they could with Lawson at this stage so they excused him as a witness temporarily but told him to remain until jurisdiction of the committee until the resolution putting him in contempt are disposed of.

At today's hearing Lawson acknowledged he was more interested in a congressional investigation of the New York Stock Exchange which would result in remedial legislation, than he was in investigating the "leak" on President Wilson's peace note.

In the course of the discussion of the unnamed trio of whom the congressman is said to have spoken, Lawson declared he not only would give a special committee their names, but also the amount of money they were supposed to have made from stock transactions, Lawson promised to "furnish competent testimony."

"Will you give their names?" Chairman Henry asked.

"I will go further," said Lawson; "I will name amounts of money; great amounts of money. More than $1,000,000."

Continued refusal of Thomas W. Lawson to answer categorical questions by the house rules committee in the leak inquiry today caused the committee to entertain a second motion by Representative Bennett that he be cited before the bar of the house for contempt. The motion was held on the table for action.

Representative Bennett demanded that Lawson name the man who he says told him a New York broker, a cabinet official and a U. S. senator participated in a stock gambling partnership. Lawson flatly refused for two reasons, one that he was already cited for contempt and the other that he did not think it was necessary to give the names at this time.

Lawson promised the house rules committee he would disclose the names of the cabinet official, the senator and the New York banker who he says a member of congress told him were engaged in a stock gambling partnership if the house ordered an investigation as a result of the rules committee's preliminary hearings.

The line of examination then turned to the stock exchange and Lawson's own operations particularly during the month of December, 1916, during which the "leak" occurred.

Lawson said that bad as the break on the market was when the leak came, it probably would have been worse if there had been no leak.

"My opinion is that the break was weeks in coming and that the leak gave certain operators an opportunity to prepare for the crash," said Lawson. "We didn't have any bank or stock exchange failures accompanying this crash. So I think the"

THE HOME BUILDING ASSOCIATION COMPANY OF NEWARK, OHIO

"PAY UP WEEK" IS PLANNED BY LOCAL STORES

Newark merchants are interested in the campaign for better fire protection and lower insurance rates inaugurated by the Chamber of Commerce. The mercantile bureau will be represented by a committee which will attend the meeting of the membership council, Thursday night in the Hunter-Baker building, when the movement will be launched. There will be talks by Fire Chief Louis Bausch and others.

Chairman Geo. Hermann presided at last night's meeting of the mercantile bureau and there was a good attendance of the leading merchants. A committee was appointed to arrange for a "Pay Up Week" in February. Similar campaigns have been put on in other cities with much success.

The bureau reaffirmed its endorsement of the Stevens-Ashurst bill pending in congress, which seeks to protect the trademark of nationally advertised products. This bill has been opposed by the interests devoted to trading stamps.

The chair was directed to appoint a committee of three to investigate the advantages of abolishing the "goods on approval" custom which is proving so costly to merchants and the public. This committee is to make a complete investigation.

Truthful advertising was discussed and it was the sense of a number that the best way to obtain it is through an advertising club, affiliated with the Chamber, to which merchants who buy space, and advertising salesmen may belong. The chair was authorized to appoint a committee on commercial lighting.

Manager Mosser presented a report from the industrial bureau showing that 25 meetings had been held since May 19, with a total attendance of 136, and more than a score of prospects had been investigated. Several live ones are being negotiated. An employment bureau has been launched under the direction of the State Industrial Commission. Hundreds of letters have been written to prospects and every possible lead obtained at headquarters has been diligently followed up. The Industrial Survey is about completed and the facts will be available soon for industrial development. He called attention to two great needs:

A financial plan, backed by the local money interests, to provide for expansion of present industries and obtaining new ones.

Erection of suitable buildings as incubator plants for small manufacturers where eventually will become big ones.

Justice Jones' Court.
Roy W. Frame, a B. and O. detective, filed an affidavit in Justice D. M. Jones' court against Alex. Toddy, charging him with taking brass from the company. The latter appeared in the justice court and after pleading guilty was fined $10 and the costs by Justice Jones.

The session will consume the entire week at least.

In the case of Alma E. Hilliard vs. Wm. R. Bowers, a petition in foreclosure, leave was given to withdraw petition and to file an amended petition setting out an additional cause of action.

a large drive belt at the plant of the Newark Furniture factory about ten days ago. The boys were apprehended by Probation Officer John Dwyer after he had discovered that they were purloining tools from the factory and hiding them. He then suspected that they had knowledge of the belt cutting and after "sweating" one of them for some time he owned up to it implicating his companion. The other boy then finally confessed. The damage to the belt will amount to about $35.

GREECE HANDED ULTIMATUM BY ENTENTE ALLIES

(ASSOCIATED PRESS TELEGRAM)
Athens, Greece, Jan. 9, via London.—Ministers of the entente powers today handed to the Greek government an ultimatum giving Greece 48 hours to comply with the demands contained in the note drawn up by France, Great Britain and Russia on December 31.

The entente note to Greece demands, among other things, that all Greek forces outside of Peloponnesus be reduced to a number strictly necessary to the preservation of order; that all meetings of reservists in Greece north of the Isthmus of Corinth be prohibited; that all persons detained for high treason or for other political reasons be released forthwith; that the commandant of the first army corps be dismissed and that the Greek government make apologies to the allies ministers.

Located the Bodies.
As a means of locating the bodies of four United States soldiers who were accidentally drowned in the Rio Grande recently an unusual experiment was tried and proved successful.

A hat was thrown into the water at the point where the men had last been seen and was followed downstream until, after traveling about five miles from the scene of the accident, it came to an eddy where it moved about slowly for some time. This gave the searchers what they thought might be a clue, and, following a practice frequently used in searching for bodies, a charge of dynamite was exploded at the point where the progress of the hat had ceased. Immediately the bodies came to the surface.

The explanation of the experiment is that the Rio Grande in this region is tortuous and has many eddies. The searchers rightly assumed that the bodies would be carried downstream until they came to an eddy, which in this instance was indicated by the retarded progress of the hat.—St. Louis Republic.

He Made It "We."
It was the night of Lincoln's first election, and the little frame home of the Lincolns in Springfield, Ill., was filled with friends and relatives, all eager for some news of the election results. The reports for awhile had been coming in early and favorable, but after awhile they began to be less promising. Mrs. Lincoln had been by her husband's side all day. He now insisted that she retire. The crowd gradually began to dwindle. Then came the news that New York had been carried, followed immediately by the report that Lincoln had carried the country. The rest of the story would be better told by the great man himself.

"When there was no longer any doubt or reason for doubt," he related afterward, "I went up to my bedroom and found my wife asleep. I gently touched her shoulder and said, 'Mary.' She made no answer. I spoke again, a little louder, saying, 'Mary, Mary, we are elected!'"—Brooklyn Eagle.

Slang at Annapolis.
For certain slang expressions used by cadets I am indebted to a member of the corps. From this future admiral I learn that a "bird" or "wazzo" is a man or boy; that a "pup sheet" is a report covering delinquencies and that to "hit the pay" is to be reported for delinquency; that "steam" is marine engineering and to be "bilked for juice" is to fail in examinations in electrical engineering; to get an "unsat" or unsatisfactory mark, or even a "zip" or "swabo," which is a zero.

Cadets do not escort girls to dances, but "drag" them; a girl is a "drag," and a "heavy drag" or "lick" is an unattractive girl who must be taken to a dance. A "south" or "jimmylegs" is a night watchman, and to be "ragged" is to be caught. Mess hall waiters are sometimes called "mokes," while at other times the names of certain exalted dignitaries of the navy department or of the academy are applied to them.—Julian Street in Collier's Weekly.

During Queen Victoria's reign eight parliaments lasted over five years and two over six years. The property qualifications considerably restrict the right of suffrage, and only about one-sixth of the people are voters. This provision applies only to the clergy.

BURNER & MCUNE FIRE 31 YEARS AGO RECALLED

Twenty-two hours on duty as a fire fighter, with the temperature registering from 10 to 20 below zero is not a pleasant memory to recall by any means but an old photograph taken by a photographer of the time, brought to the memory of Frank Trost, who assisted in the fight against the destructive fire of Jan. 9 and 10, 1886, which destroyed the Burner & McCune hardware store and damaged adjoining buildings, the full details of the thrilling event.

The fire started at 11 o'clock on Saturday night, Jan. 9, and was discovered by John Adams a laundry man who was on his way home from work. Fire engines used the canal water in those days and a delay in getting an engine to the canal enabled the blaze to get a good start. Before it was extinguished, a loss of $125,000 resulted.

The Advocate of Jan. 11, the Monday following the blaze states that the temperature was 4 degrees below zero. A notation on the back of the photograph of Mr. Trost says it was 10 degrees below. At any rate, the weather was so cold that the water thrown by the fire department froze in great sheets on the walls of the building and the firemen and citizens who aided were covered with ice so that they appeared like walking icicles. This same story says that J. R. Davies suffered frostbitten ears while Dick Henderson, shot and Thomas McDermott suffered frozen hands and arms. Warm mittens and caps were furnished to the fire fighters throughout the night and hot coffee and lunch was provided by citizens. William Rowe received the everlasting thanks of Engineer Bausch of one of the engine companies for the use of Rowe's fur cap. The Jones building occupied by the hardware store was destroyed. The Patton building and the structure owned by the Fleck heirs, both adjoining the burned building were badly damaged. Oils and paints in the hardware store added to the fury of the flames.

OHIO MINERS MAY OPPOSE COMPULSORY LABOR ARBITRATION

Columbus, Jan. 9.—Compulsory arbitration of labor disputes as recommended in a recent message of President Wilson to congress may be opposed by Ohio Mine Workers in convention here today. Secretary G. W. Savage of the Ohio Miners in addressing the convention said the miners were opposed to this feature of the Adamson eight hour law for railroad employes, but were given to understand this law did not effect labor generally. Since then he said President Wilson had favored compulsory arbitration in his message and he urged all miners to write to their congressmen and senators opposing this.

William Green, international secretary of the United Mine Workers of America recommended establishment of a co-operative system of buying to reduce the high cost of living. He discouraged the movement among Ohio miners to ask for an increase in salary before the expiration of their present wage contract on April 1, 1918.

LOCAL WEATHER

Mild weather—unseasonably mild—light rain with occasional flakes of snow featured the weather today. The temperature this morning registered 53 degrees but by noon it had dropped to 45 degrees. During the morning a light rain fell and there were occasional flakes of snow. The weather man gives little promise of any change in the next twenty-four hours. Incidentally the mild weather has had its effect on coal prices in some of the larger cities though the price in Newark remains unchanged. Old residents averred that thirty-one years ago today the temperature was 10 to 15 degrees below zero.

Mother Praises Remedy That Relieved Her Baby

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a Dependable Family Laxative.

Nearly all the sickness incident to a baby's life is due to constipation, or inaction of the bowels. At the first indication of irregularity in this important function, relief should be afforded promptly. A mild laxative should be administered to gently carry off the congested waste and leave the stomach and bowels free to perform their allotted tasks.

Of the various remedies recommended to relieve constipation, the combination of simple laxative herbs with pepsin, as prescribed by Dr. W. B. Caldwell and sold in drug stores under the name of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, is the most effective. It contains no opiate or narcotic drug, is pleasant to the taste, mild and gentle in action, and quickly brings relief in an easy, natural manner.

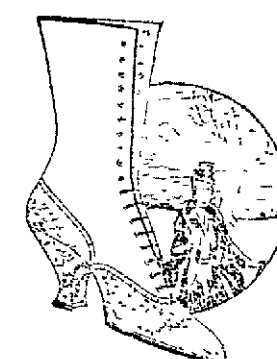

Mrs. C. J. Douglas, Mason, Ill., writes that she cannot say enough in praise of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin as a dependable family laxative. Little Mary Eva had been badly constipated until they tried Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which brought the first natural relief the child had had in two weeks.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is sold in drug stores everywhere and costs only fifty cents a bottle. To avoid imitations and ineffective substitutes be sure to ask for Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. See that a facsimile of Dr. Caldwell's signature and his portrait appear on the yellow carton in which the bottle is packed. A trial bottle, free of charge, can be obtained by writing to Dr. W. B. Gov. Cox Urges Amendment to Compensation Act; Praise For Ohio's Rural School Law

Columbus, Jan. 9.—Governor Cox in his message to the general assembly, among other things, urged adoption of the initiative amendment to the workmen's compensation law, and called attention to the financial needs of the larger cities of the state. His message follows:

To the General Assembly: With the beginning of the new constitutional regime four years ago, and while facing the responsibilities imposed at that time, I made this official observation:

"It requires considerable faith in the righteousness of a cause to turn face from the old order of things, mindful that the policies of government about to be adopted involve the hopes and aspirations of five million human souls. But history tells us that while we can profit immeasurably by the experience of the past, every government that has endured kept its face toward the sunrise and not the sunset of civilization. We must be guided by the wisdom of the past and seek to prove the worthy sons of worthy sires, by making as great development in our time as they made in theirs. Ours is not the creed of the cynic, looking with scorn upon the institutions of yesterday. Civilization is simply a relay race, and unless we take it up with the freshness of spirit with which our fathers began it, the generation is in a condition of certain decay."

That was an encouraging thought that it is now, because in theory it was based upon the philosophy and justice of government, and in practice, the laws passed pursuant to that policy have proved both efficient and humane. Let me impress upon you, however, with most respectful emphasis, that progress is made by two distinct stages, and if results are to justify the basic principle, there must be two objectives: first, the drafting of the laws with such forthrightness as the finite mind possesses, and second, the most vigilant and sympathetic administration of them. Newly cleared ground is more susceptible of rank undergrowth than either the forest or the tilled soil, and in this biennial period when your responsibilities and mine are in common, we must, in order to approach the maximum possibilities for the general good, hold to the fundamentals upon which the new legislation was based, and go on further in this session than to provide for accruing necessities. Unrestrained theory would soon turn the thought of the state to reaction, and the public estimate would be that we were controlled more by caprice than constructive capacity. The laws that came from the new constitution four years ago, have stood the test of time, and they have successfully run the gauntlet of sustained, insidious and artful opposition. They are structurally sound, and we should be sure that the revision made, is but the logical adjustment of an unaltered principle to changing conditions.

Favors Initiated Bill. Of first importance is the proposal to strengthen the workmen's compensation law, and I most earnestly recommend the adoption of the initiated bill on that subject. When the law was passed, it was desired to displace liability insurance with a plan of guaranteed compensation to injured workmen and dependents, without recourse to the courts.

Liability insurance, in its very essence, is opposed, if not repugnant to the principle of compensation. The former gave very uncertain relief to the toiling masses—the latter assures immediate relief. We do not go beyond the unquestioned truth in the statement that the conditions of social unrest, of impatience with, if not a resentful feeling toward the courts and glaring injustices in every community where there was located shop mill or mine, grew out of the practices of liability insurance. The amendment now recommended simply carries into effect, by letter, the spirit of the statute. Let us, in entire fairness, recount the detailed opposition that was made to the workmen's compensation bill by the liability insurance companies when it was on hearing before the joint committees of the two houses:

First: It was contended that the administrative cost to the state would be one million dollars or more. In the year 1916, with an unprecedented industrial activity, the expense has been less than three hundred thousand dollars.

Second: It was urged that the liability companies could carry on more profitably than the state because they were trained in it, and the state was not. The answer to this is, that the liability companies had never engaged in the compensation business while the industrial commission had experience, as a matter of fact, under the voluntary compensation law. Developments have so thoroughly demonstrated the fallacy of these two claims, that they are no longer maintained.

Third: A very ingenious propaganda was established, and has been continued for the purpose of playing upon the fear and apprehension of the employer by painting the mirage of probable lawsuits.

When the measure was first drawn the insurance companies sent representatives to Chambers of Commerce and trades bodies generally, and pointed out to them that the state plan of workmen's compensation did not give them full protection, while insurance with the liability companies did. This theory was based upon the constitutional provision that the suit should be brought against the employer of labor, either by the injured or the dependent, if the accident resulted from the willful act of the employer, or the violation of the safety laws of the state.

Now let us analyze that feature: Every consideration of public policy suggests that no one shall be insured against the consequences of an unlawful act. No man whose conscience tells him the difference between right and wrong will willingly engage in it, at least. What the legal and constitutional aspect is, the Supreme Court will decide. If it should hold that the practice is not offensive to the constitution, it is a reasonable certainty that public desire and insistence will lead to an amendment to the constitution. I have no hesitation in expressing the belief that the ultimate policy, established, if need be, by constitutional change, will bar any system, either through insurance or otherwise, from protecting man, or corporation, that commits an act, declared plainly by statute to be illegal. Therefore, in my judgment at least, it is safe to assume that the state plan of insurance will give the maximum protection under the constitution, and no one can do more. In order to ascertain whether this will contribute to more than very superficial litigation, or justify any alarm by the business community, need not speculate as to the future. The answer is found from the experience of the past. Since the adoption of the law, there have been 300,000 industrial accidents, and only seventeen suits have been brought against employers who paid into the state insurance fund. Exclusive of the McWeeney case, which occurred under what is now an abolished law, there was but one single case decided by the court against the employer in the list of seventeen, and that was for two thousand dollars. Five cases were settled out of court, four were decided in favor of the employer, one was dismissed by the court, and four are still pending. More than one thousand firms carry their own insurance under the new law, and against these institutions no suits have been brought. Against the employers who have insured with the liability insurance companies, eight suits have been instituted, making a total of thirty lawsuits from all sources. These figures are procured from the official records of the Industrial Commission.

Having been associated with the drafting of the compulsory act in Ohio, and with its initial administration, I know full well that the first objective in mind was guaranteed compensation, prevention as far as possible of all legal contention between labor and capital, and such coordination in the administration of this law and the safety laws as would bring about a decrease in the number of accidents. In order to discourage litigation, it was not only provided that the employee lost his right under the compensation law if he went to the courts, under the common law, in the event of his so doing, the employer had restored to him two of the old common law defenses. In this precaution, we went just as far as the constitution permitted, and no one will deny that the limitations in that organic instrument are justified. If the initiated amendment is adopted then the employers of labor must either come under the state fund, or avail themselves of the provisions of section twenty-three and carry their own insurance, after giving satisfactory bond that accidents will be reported as they occur, and that payments will be made under the schedule prescribed. They will have no right, however, to re-insure with liability companies. Section twenty-three was carried into the law with the full knowledge and consent of every interest friendly to the common law, for the corporations which maintain their own hospitals and give first aid to the injured workman asked that this personal relation not be disturbed. It was so obviously calculated to promote better feeling between labor and capital that it was accepted.

Reports from the Industrial Commission show that the liability companies now insure barely five per cent of the workmen of the state. Every year the percentage runs against them in such measure as to indicate that practically all employers who do not desire to carry their own insurance prefer to come in under the state fund.

Experience thoroughly disproves that and you need not be reminded that an attempt has been made to carry this sacred function of government into the political activities of the day by the very agencies that ascribed this tendency to others. At no time in all the history of Ohio, if my power of observation possesses any accuracy, has any special interest expended so much money and effort in the liability insurance companies in an attempt to perpetuate administrative policies favorable to their designs. The time has now come to stop commercializing industrial tragedy. Neither practical nor moral consideration can support it. The manufacturer does not want it, the laboring people protest against it, and it is repugnant to the public conscience. A co-operation between the injured and the liability insurance companies must be maintained, and it is too valuable to be transferred to any business enterprise. If the general assembly writes this strengthening and protecting provision into the workmen's compensation law of Ohio, it will not only respond to the call of five million toilers within our confines, but make a contribution to government and society that will be an inspiration to other commonwealths where the battle is not yet won. Able counsel are agreed that the amendment is constitutionally sound, and that it will put an end to serious legal opposition to the Ohio act.

School Law Misunderstood.

There has been criticism of the rural school law, but it comes largely from misunderstanding. Rarely was there a more exhaustive and intelligent and painstaking survey of any subject than that made before the drafting of the Ohio code. It affords the opportunity for almost complete transformation of rural conditions, and gives communities the chance to educate the youth in their own townships under facilities equal to those enjoyed in the cities. Wherever it has been tested with an environment of sympathetic understanding it has brought to the household and exalted the function of government. You will pardon the personal reference to the close application which I brought to the subject when the law was passed, and the investigation that I have made in a large majority of the counties since then, for the purpose of observing at first hand the actual local conditions. Nothing could be more reactionary than to change this law to impair its fundamental principle. It may be that experience suggests alterations in detail, but they should not go beyond that. Most of the things complained of are not the fault of the law, but of the counties and townships that fail to give that vigilant attention to local educational matters which would render abuses by local school officials impossible. The facility is inherent in the law itself to meet either delinquency or excess. Oversupervision has been corrected in many counties, and it can be in all. Any law designed for a great service, and sound and ambitious in its plan must have, if it succeeds, the most awakened co-operation of every interest involved, and the school law touches every home in the country side. When the code was molded into form, the whole underlying theory was not only to give unprecedent opportunity for education to the rural youth, but to tie its administration close to the citizen right of the parent. Our people must realize that the maximum of local authority, perforce, exacts more than the minimum of local vigilance. There need be no fear as to the final outcome. Ohio will not step backward in education. The structure that has been built will be blessed by every community that is privileged to have a physical demonstration of it.

Financial Need of Cities.

The present financial need of cities and some villages and rural subdivisions, is a matter that I present for your most serious thought. The Smith One Per Cent law was designed for the purpose of protecting local taxing subdivisions from excessive rates in taxation. While some who hold to the home rule principle in government believe that this was a trespass against the real principle of a democracy, there can be no question about the law's deep significance in the favor of the majority of the people of the state. It was passed under the administration of Governor Harmon. Both to its form and principle he gave much time and thought. Profound in the law, and statecraft, his sponsorship gave it a strong appeal to the favorable consideration of communities.

The law fixed the limit of taxation at ten mills, with the right to go to ten and a half mills, and the people under its operation, real estate was increased in its assessed value all over the state, and it was the hope that the arbitrary reduction in rate to not more than fifteen mills in any event, would bring large amounts of personal property to the duplicate, which had, by the almost binding force of custom and with apparent general consent, not been listed previously. If a thoroughly honest and rational were made, particularly in the cities, present emergencies would not exist, and the theory of the Smith law would be justified in the fullest sense.

It is not a cynical impulse which prompts the observation that the question of taxation, and particularly the method of assessing property for that purpose, will not be finally solved much in advance of the millennium. Government has always found it the most vexatious problem, and doubtless it always will.

The cities are growing more rapidly in population than anyone ever believed they would, and modern public life has so promoted the improved surroundings and safety of the home as to bring about a sustained insistence for its extension and in many instances, regardless of increased cost through taxation.

We must be reminded, however, that large office buildings have been constructed and real estate has been improved in amounts aggregating millions of dollars, largely because of the guarantee of a fixed limit in the tax rate, and the reasons for this are obvious. Leases are made for a given term of years, while the tax rate fluctuates, and without a limit being fixed, the proper return on investment might be easily dissipated. This subject enters so vitally, therefore, into the growth and stability of local conditions, that the principle of the Smith law should not be impaired, and yet if we adhere blindly to it as a fetish, the action withheld from the state to preserve the law, may lead to its destruction, so that we must approach its consideration with the idea of strengthening it, by adjustment to conditions that could not have been foreseen when the law was written. While it may seem a contradiction that the lifting of the limitation may vitalize the law itself, still, on reflection, the theory seems sound. There are certain principles fundamental in government that necessarily so over shadow more recent policies as to speak an arbitrary command. Common honesty presupposes the payment of every debt incurred by local subdivisions through honorable transaction, and in a number of municipalities, it is impossible now to provide within the limitation of fifteen mills, for both the payment of accruing bonded debts, and governmental necessities. Time will correct the present archaic and illogical system of listing property for taxation. Public opinion on this as on other subjects will be automatically aroused, and the plain and simple fact of fact and fallacy. Until the change is made, however, it may be necessary to give some elasticity to the Smith law.

The Eightieth General Assembly authorized the appointment of a commission to investigate the financial condition of local government, and to see whether it was possible, either by a new plan of distribution of revenues as between the state and local subdivisions, or by a constructive change in the law, to provide for the very emergencies described. The same general assembly also reduced the state tax levy, and under this reduction the state is hardly able to surrender any of its revenues, and continue to match disbursements and pay its obligations. In this connection it is well to remember that the expense of the state government last year, for the first time in a long while, exceeded its income. Certainly the relief needed cannot be afforded in this way. The committee on investigation, already referred to, has expended a great deal of time, the leadership in the work having been assumed by Mr. Stewart L. Tatum of Springfield, whose service in the high order and so patriotically rendered as to call for this acknowledgment. It is his judgment that the safest steps lie in the direction of taking the sinking fund and interest charge out of the first ten mills in the limitation. Obviously the exception from the five mills making up the difference between the ten and fifteen mills is not recommended because that relates to improvements authorized by a vote of the people. If the sinking fund and interest expense are lifted out of the first ten mills, it should only be done by local option. If necessity for it exists, it ought to be voiced by the people themselves through their suffrage right.

It might be well also, to supplement this plan if it meets with your adoption, with an added check on the issuance of bonds. The Longworth act is a wise measure, and the necessity of a restraint in turning out bond issues has been rendered plain by the action of the past. A provision such as the Smith law carrying arbitrary features is oftentimes necessary to bring the hour of reflection and inventory. Only through its enactment, apparently, has the public been brought to a measurable understanding of the unfortunate laxity in the past, in the issuance of bonds. That detail was so unbusinesslike and so unfair to the succeeding generation, that the long coming need almost incredibly long time bonds were issued for purely temporary improvements. Inevitably they fell upon a time and generation that did not profit by the service provided for. Bonds are being paid now that were issued for projects long ago out of existence.

Agricultural Needs.

The agricultural affairs of the state need some attention legislatively. They are entitled, by virtue of changes that have been made from one plan to another in the last few years, to a stable policy. The agricultural commission act as passed by the Eightieth general assembly was intended primarily to remove duplication in service and bring about a co-ordination of endeavor by the several departments. While it was changed by the Eighty-first general assembly, in keeping with the ruling administrative thought at that time, of decentralization, duplication in work was not restored. Legislative change should not be made from the mere desire to provide a difference in voting and property so, but government does not provide real means for this interested class of voters to render response to a commanding duty of citizenship. Sufficient attention has been given to this matter to warrant the assurance that the absent voting plan is entirely feasible without in any way disturbing the registration laws or promoting the opportunity for fraud. I earnestly recommend the passage of such a law.

The Eightieth General Assembly passed the Gregory act which separated the state and national tickets in election, for the purpose being to keep national and local issues apart. It was repealed by the Eighty-first General Assembly, and the old arrangement restored through the Hulsitt law. The first measure, disassociating the ballots had been recommended for years by non-partisan students of the subject, and was based upon principle. None will deny the Hulsitt act was promptly entirely repudiated, and it should be repealed.

In the authorization of public expense, you should be mindful of economy, and surround the state department so far as you can, with such checks and restraints as to prevent extravagance, but it should be a constructive, and not a false economy. Let us speak plainly on this subject. Government, under modern auspices is given enlarged functions. We are finding out that the government which belongs to the people can render service to them which was not attempted under the old order. The inventive and experimental genius of man has been more generally and more intensively applied to this subject in the last decade than ever before, and in this evolutionary development, and the state is given new assignments upon the very sensible idea that the larger unit not only promotes efficiency, but economy as well. If the ordinary amounts to anything, it must have a practical result, and what society exacts from government, it may pay for.

Coming to the concrete: There is no economy in making inadequate provision for the wards of the state, and if money were saved at the sacrifice of self-respect, the circumstance would be a reproach to the commonwealth. Our governmental unit conceived by an intelligent citizenship and built on resource unsurpassed almost in its diversity and richness, will never claim the reverence it deserves unless in policy it is so sympathetic as to insure relief and measurable comfort for the weak and unfortunate. It is one thing to help those in unhappy plight and quite another duty to society to pursue investigation that will supply a safe and effective direction of energy, for the purpose of providing against conditions that needlessly help to fill our institutions. The juvenile research bureau ought to be given the fullest opportunity to test its utility. Just as other states were anxiously awaiting the results in Ohio following its creation, the work was almost, if not entirely, abandoned. It should be restored.

There is no economy in the ultimate, in giving the banking department insufficient funds, because impaired regulation breeds neglect, and one bank failure may carry a loss of ten times the amount saved through unwise legislative provision. There is nothing gained in making vision and reorganization. They are a confused jumble of legislative piecemeal, coming a period of twenty-five years. Whenever legislation seemed to suggest statutory change, a law was passed to meet that immediate requirement, without regard to legislation upon similar subjects, and with no idea of co-ordination. Eight sections deal with the need of apportioning and defraying the expense of election between the various units of government. The state auditor, Mr. Donahy, reports that the bureau of accounting is without definite information as to whether the boards of elections are making a proper distribution of these expenses because the provisions of the statute are both contradictory and unintelligible. There are at least five different forms for submitting different questions to the vote of the people. The machinery of elections is very expensive, and that a million dollars a year to exercise our right of suffrage. The board of elections make expenditures without restraint, being limited by neither appropriation nor budget. It would seem quite unnecessary to elaborate upon the unsafety of this practice.

Students of the subject suggest that cost might be diminished by reducing the number of registration days, and making primary day a registration day, and some states have done this. This would popularize the primary and insure a larger vote. The cost to candidates might be reduced by changing primary date from August to September, and thus shortening the campaign. At any rate, the election laws should be recodified with care and without unnecessary expense. It is recommended, therefore, that a legislative committee be appointed for this purpose, and to examine also into the Massachusetts plan of voting. Its chief recommendation is that it encourage independent suffrage action, and brings a fuller understanding of the issues. It is always wise in contemplating an important change in law and custom to precede legislative action by careful survey. The existing recommendation is made pursuant to that thought.

The primary law should be changed so as to provide for the rotation of names on the ballot, and thus destroy the very unfair advantage accruing from location by alphabet. It is a very simple thing to do, and so manifestly right that there should be neither delay nor hesitation in the change.

Absent Voters' Law.

The absence of Ohio soldiers from their homes brings to public notice the importance and propriety of passing an absent voters' law. These men have left both home and business, and the country has been sacrificed to patriotism, and yet under existing election laws, the further penalty has been imposed of depriving them of their suffrage rights. There are other citizens who lose their voting privilege because their normal responsibilities and assignments carry them away from home. Society inveighs against indifference in voting and property so, but government does not provide real means for this interested class of voters to render response to a commanding duty of citizenship. Sufficient attention has been given to this matter to warrant the assurance that the absent voting plan is entirely feasible without in any way disturbing the registration laws or promoting the opportunity for fraud. I earnestly recommend the passage of such a law.

The Eightieth General Assembly passed the Gregory act which separated the state and national tickets in election, for the purpose being to keep national and local issues apart. It was repealed by the Eighty-first General Assembly, and the old arrangement restored through the Hulsitt law. The first measure, disassociating the ballots had been recommended for years by non-partisan students of the subject, and was based upon principle. None will deny the Hulsitt act was promptly entirely repudiated, and it should be repealed.

In the authorization of public expense, you should be mindful of economy, and surround the state department so far as you can, with such checks and restraints as to prevent extravagance, but it should be a constructive, and not a false economy. Let us speak plainly on this subject. Government, under modern auspices is given enlarged functions. We are finding out that the government which belongs to the people can render service to them which was not attempted under the old order. The inventive and experimental genius of man has been more generally and more intensively applied to this subject in the last decade than ever before, and in this evolutionary development, and the state is given new assignments upon the very sensible idea that the larger unit not only promotes efficiency, but economy as well. If the ordinary amounts to anything, it must have a practical result, and what society exacts from government, it may pay for.

Coming to the concrete: There is no economy in making inadequate provision for the wards of the state, and if money were saved at the sacrifice of self-respect, the circumstance would be a reproach to the commonwealth. Our governmental unit conceived by an intelligent citizenship and built on resource unsurpassed almost in its diversity and richness, will never claim the reverence it deserves unless in policy it is so sympathetic as to insure relief and measurable comfort for the weak and unfortunate. It is one thing to help those in unhappy plight and quite another duty to society to pursue investigation that will supply a safe and effective direction of energy, for the purpose of providing against conditions that needlessly help to fill our institutions. The juvenile research bureau ought to be given the fullest opportunity to test its utility. Just as other states were anxiously awaiting the results in Ohio following its creation, the work was almost, if not entirely, abandoned. It should be restored.

There is no economy in the ultimate, in giving the banking department insufficient funds, because impaired regulation breeds neglect, and one bank failure may carry a loss of ten times the amount saved through unwise legislative provision. There is nothing gained in making such paltry allowance for the inspection of building associations as to bring the work at times to an absolute stop. Public confidence in these institutions is an asset to society not to be measured by a few thousand dollars. In the year 1914 there were 77,753 industrial accidents in Ohio. In 1916 more than twice as many, or 166,187. This increase has been occasioned in some part by our enlarged industrial activity, but the element of governmental neglect in inspection is too outstanding to be denied. It is a great thing to provide compensation for the widow and children of those who are lost in the course of employment, but it is a greater thing to protect the life of the worker so that he may be spared. It is desirable to help the permanently disabled worker through our compensation law, but more desirable to protect him against injury in the first instance.

Strengthen Budget System.

In connection with the subject matter of prudent expense, we should consider the importance of strengthening our budget system. It is being adopted by other states. It has made it possible for the affairs of our government to be placed on a business basis. It opened the way for specific appropriations and it will not only effect a saving in money, but a compact budget carries with it a definite administrative plan, and the members of the assembly serving in their representative capacity are entitled certainly to some understanding as to what is to be done, and what the cost will be.

Our people have not only endorsed the work of prison reform, begun in the state, but regarded it with pride and enthusiasm. The hope is expressed that the assembly will render such assistance to the project as will make it possible to regain the lost ground. Adequate appropriations should be made to begin the work of construction on the prison farm at once. It is unnecessary to elaborate on the great good that will come to society from this project. We have tangible results as a confirmation of the theory upon which it was originally based. Just why prison facilities are no longer availed of in making brick for the highways is not apparent. Brief time should reveal whether impediments actually exist. If they do they should be removed.

Change Liquor Law.

The liquor license law should be changed so as to set forward the date of issuing licenses from November to May or June, preferably. The grants come too near the election, and there is the two-fold danger of intimidation being practiced on deserving licensees, and political service influencing undeserving licensees. The arm of government which forgets in the excitement of a campaign the proprieties that should rule, can hardly be regarded as a safe agency to enforce regulation, and respect for law afterwards.

The Cass road law, passed by the Eighty-first General Assembly, possessing as it does, some virtues, is still full of frailties. It required very liberal legal interpretation to give it an administrative start. I understand that the department of justice has, by amendments drafted, removed both incongruity, and unwieldy provision. I recommend the most careful attention to be given to this very important subject, because the improvement of the highways is a very definite contribution to progress.

The grateful voice of the state ought to be raised in recognition of the service rendered by our soldiers on the border. It has been more trying, probably, in some respects than the excitement and adventure of actual hostilities. Our young boys have sacrificed themselves so as to give spur to our pride and win the approbation of the federal government.

You can do no more in promoting the general welfare than by carefully conserving the state institutions of learning, and giving them ample facilities, within prudent bounds, however, to meet accumulating responsibilities.

The auditor of state, Mr. Donahy, after four years of singularly efficient service, marked by intelligent analysis of conditions, and a courageous insistence on the enactment of law, presents a number of suggestions remedial in character. I commend them to your very earnest attention.

Amend Corrupt Practice Act.

Let me lay particular emphasis on the necessity of safeguarding the suffrage thought of the state from the dangers of corrupt influences. The sums of money expended for so-called political purposes are assuming such magnitude as to cause seemingly well-founded alarm, if not to justify the belief that the legitimate purpose of campaigning is being exceeded. Unfettered by law, this tendency might result in the waters of our free institutions being poisoned at their very base. Reduced to simple terms, the object of a campaign is to inform the voters on every subject that legitimately and germanely joins to the issues that any and every project opposed to it in motive, cannot but be regarded as dangerous. Human frailties should not be played upon by vast treasures of money advanced by men or movements whose huge disbursements can hardly be looked upon as of patriotic inspiration. It is not necessary to expend large amounts of money for the promotion of a worthy cause, and inversely, any cause or candidacy having behind it unprecedented financial support is likely to be regarded with suspicion. It may, through legislation, be necessary to restrain irresponsible organizations whose existence and activities are born of a hidden design, conceived by some interest afraid to operate in the open. I recommend that a legislative committee of investigation be appointed with the power to employ counsel, and the authority to summon persons and papers and to swear witnesses in order that it might be known just what organizations have been entering into campaign activities, and how much money they expended and collected—also the names of the contributors. This should extend also to candidates. The facts as adduced will then be a safe guide as to the necessity of strengthening the corrupt practices act, or more rigorously enforcing existing law, or both.

The commission which has recently submitted its report in favor of establishing a home for crippled children, has so apparently marked their survey with patriotic zeal, and the recommendations seem to be based on such firm conviction that you can afford to carefully weigh them. Believing the general welfare will be promoted by the establishment of such a home, I recommend its authorization.

KEEP LOOKING YOUNG

It's Easy—If You Know Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

The secret of keeping young is to feed young—to do this you must watch your liver and bowels—there's no need of having a sallow complexion—dark rings under your eyes—pimples—a bilious look in your face—dull eyes with no sparkle. Your doctor will tell you ninety per cent of all sickness comes from inactive bowels and liver.

Dr. Edwards, a well-known physician in Ohio, perfected a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil to act on the liver and bowels, which he gave to his patients for years.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel, are gentle in their action, yet always effective. They bring about that exuberance of spirit, that natural buoyancy which should be enjoyed by everyone, by toning up the liver and clearing the system of impurities. You will know Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets by their olive color. 10c and 25c per box. All druggists.

Granville

(Special to The Advocate)

Granville, Jan. 9.—That "a little nonchance now and then, is relieved by the best of men" was proved true at the meeting of the Travelers' Club, on Monday afternoon, January 8, the first of the New Year, named on the Year Book as the annual business meeting, it soon resolved itself into a "Riley moving picture show," closing with a social hour during which dainty refreshments were served. The president, Mrs. M. E. Stickney presided at the business meeting, which resulted in returning the following officers for the coming year: Mrs. Stickney, president; Mrs. E. E. Hopkins, Mrs. Mary N. Jones, vice presidents; Mrs. J. E. Megaw, secretary; Mrs. E. P. Cook, treasurer; Mrs. W. D. Clemons, corresponding secretary; Miss Jennie Roe, librarian; Mrs. Daniel Rogers, critic; Mrs. C. E. Goodell, Mrs. Frank Carney, Mrs. K. S. Hines, program committee, with Mrs. Stickney as member ex-officio. On motion it was decided to send the book asked for, to the Marysville Institution for Women and Girls. The program, in charge of Mrs. Megaw and Mrs. Clemons, consisted of readings of the best known poems of James Whitcomb Riley, by Mrs. Megaw. Each of these characters appeared on the improvised stage, ranging all the way from the beautiful to the ridiculous and affording great enjoyment to the interested audience. Mrs. Clemons, herself, as the "Raggedy Man," furnishing the climax of the remarkable grouping. She closed the performance by reciting "Old Glory" to the piano accompaniment by Mrs. A. L. Odebrecht. Both Mrs. Megaw and Mrs. Clemons deserve great credit for the initiation and good taste shown in this entertainment, and the ladies of the cast no less credit for the admirable impersonations which they gave. Mrs. T. F. Chambers and Mrs. E. E. Hopkins each presented a charade using a South American country and city. "Bolivia," and "Guayaquil." Refreshments were served by the social committee composed of Mrs. C. B. Slack, Mrs. R. S. Wright, Mrs. Adda E. Sellers, Mrs. T. F. Chambers, Miss Laura Herick, Mrs. H. G. Sheidt.

At a meeting of the executive committee of the Festival association held last evening in the conservatory, the treasurer, Mrs. C. B. White, reported that the free presentation of "The Messiah" at Christmas time, cost the organization over forty dollars, and that the free will offerings handed to the ushers amounted to twenty-eight cents over the cost of production. Rather a close margin!

The Granville Board of Education at their annual meeting recently held, elected the following officers: Dr. J. W. Robner, president; Mr. T. M. Kier, vice president; Dr. E. P. Cook, clerk; Dr. Cook, who has been a member of this board for fifteen years, has been the efficient clerk for eight years of this time. Architects' plans for the proposed addition to the school building will be presented soon.

Council instructed the village clerk to notify the street car company to keep the freight off the street and sidewalk.

Quite a large number of Granville people went to Columbus yesterday for the inauguration of Governor Cox. Mrs. Belle Grove Wright was among those present, being the sister of Columbus friends.

F. Nichols motored over, having as guests George Stuart, Dr. J. W. Robner, Harry Pierce and Miss Ashbrook. Postmaster John Geach, W. H. Kusnau, Charles Robinson, Ralph Smoots, Chester Montgomery, J. C. Hood, Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Robinson, Frank Robinson, Harry Burkham, Frank Jackson, Henry Welsh, C. B. Slack attended the Press Smoker in the evening.

Exercise for Health.

If your eliminative organs are sluggish and have been very much neglected you will need more strenuous exercise. They must be stimulated to activity. This can only be done by proper exercise. One of the best for this purpose should be taken in bed before rising.

Before you get up in the morning, lie out straight in bed with your hands at your sides. Then slowly raise the legs until they are at right angles with the body. Lower just as slowly and repeat ten times. Now jump out of bed, and follow this exercise with another, whose purpose also is to induce peristaltic action. Stand erect, raise hands over head, and twisting the body to the right, at the waist only bend from the waist and try to touch the fingers to the floor. Turn body to left at the waist only and repeat. Your legs are next in order. The following exercise while giving suppleness of movement, will also act upon the eliminative organs:

Put hands on hips and swing first the right leg forward and back, and then the left leg. Try to keep your balance without taking hold of any support. After you have done this ten times raise the right leg until the knee is on a line with the waist. Hold it there a moment and lower. Repeat with the left leg.

You will find that these exercises, if vigorously done, will work miracles for you in your internal economy.

If you are careful to exercise daily, to add fruit juices to your diet, to avoid irregularity in meals, eating between meals, excess of sugars, starches and fats, and to Fletcherize your food, I do not think you will need any artificial aid to keep the interior of the body clean.

Metchnikoff as a Cook.

One day some distinguished visitors who had arrived in Paris and were being escorted about by a committee were taken to call upon the late Professor Metchnikoff, the famous scientist who believed that the secret of long life lay in diet, toward the hour of noon. The laboratory was all but empty, as most of the workers had departed for that sacred meal, the French déjeuner. But Metchnikoff was there himself intent on a vessel he was holding over a gas burner.

"It must be a very interesting experiment that keeps you engaged even at this hour," remarked one of the committee.

"Look for yourself," said Metchnikoff, and, continuing to stir with a glass tube, held up the dish so that a delicious fragrance rose to the noses of the visitors.

"That's what I'm working at," he laughed, "bananas in slices, fried in butter. They are excellent."—World's Work.

Explosives.

The whole power of any explosion, whether it be a burning or a detonation, which is a sudden flying of certain chemicals into gas all at once everywhere throughout the mass regardless of heat, is caused by nature's total refusal to permit two bodies to occupy the same place at the same time. Gunpowder occupies a hole drilled in a rock deep enough to accommodate a pint. A fuse explodes it.

During the time it takes that pint of gunpowder to change to a gas it grows so that there are 401 pints of gas occupying the hole—or trying to. If the hole is strong enough they might. But it isn't. They push the rock apart and make room for themselves. If it was a pint of good dynamite there would be a volume of 847 pints of gas trying to occupy that pint hole. And if it was blasting gelatin 1,386 pints—Scientific American.

Victoria and Napoleon.

Queen Victoria once gave a remarkable description of her visit to the tomb of Napoleon I. during the reign of Napoleon III. "The coffin is not yet here," she wrote, "but is in a small side chapel of St. Jerome. Into this the emperor led me, and there I stood at the arm of Napoleon III, his nephew, before the coffin of England's bitterest foe, I, the granddaughter of that king who hated him most and who most vigorously opposed him and this very nephew, who bears his name, being my nearest and dearest ally! The organ of the church was playing 'God Save the Queen' at the time, and this solemn scene took place by torchlight and during a thunderstorm. Strange and wonderful indeed!"

Making a Hot Compress.

In the American Journal of Nursing Elizabeth Robertson gives the following directions for making a hot compress: Wet the compress with tepid water, then iron it rapidly with a very hot flatiron. This produces sufficient heat to hold more heat and obviates the necessity of wringing out excessively hot cloths.

The Money Power.

Briggs—It is positively absurd to talk about a "money power" in this country. There is no such thing. Wags—I'd just like to discuss that with you. Have you got a minute to spare? Briggs—Not a minute. I've got a note due at the bank, and they're bothering me to death about it.—Life.

Eighty Per Cent.

PRACTICAL HEALTH HINT.

To Prevent Colds.

Dr. Eugene L. Risk of the Life Extension Institute, in New York city, suggests that one of the best methods for preventing colds is to breathe as much fresh air as possible. A draft, he holds, is not to be feared unless it is strong enough to be chilling. It is as silly to weaken your resistance by coddling as it is to be over-Spartan. The skin can be trained to help resist germ infection, and one of the worst ways to train it is to work and live and sleep in overheated rooms. The same sort of rules apply to clothing. Adapt your clothing to the condition of your health and to the conditions of the weather. One man can wear light underclothing all the year round; for another whose physique is not so hardy or who has chronic heart or kidney trouble such a course is folly. It is as harmful to expose yourself too much as it is to weaken your resistance by building up. Baths? One man can take cold baths and be no worse for them; another of a more delicate constitution will suffer nervous shocks from the same temperatures. Try out your skin and find out its reaction point. Of course you will do well to avoid constipation, overeating and extreme fatigue, for these all aggravate colds and invite them. The man who is subject to colds should be sparing in his use of tobacco and should know that he weakens his resisting powers if he drinks alcohol.

The man who walks with a measured tread goes two feet at a time.

Our Boys and Girls

Be kind at all times to your child and surround him with those who will always be so. The regularity which should be practiced in the nursery has also a good influence on your child. As it learns that its wants are supplied at a regular time, it soon becomes accustomed to an element of regularity and reliability.

If the child is not indulged whenever it cries, it soon learns the value of self control. Regularity and self control are large factors in forming discipline. It breeds obstinacy, dejection and a nervous condition. All these ailments may have their foundation laid in the first year of life if great care be not exercised to have kind, sympathetic yet perfectly just treatment for this early period.

Every Day Etiquette

Dandruff Heads Become Hairless

If you want plenty of thick, beautiful, glossy, silky hair, do by all means get rid of dandruff, for it will starve your hair and ruin it if you don't.

It doesn't do much good to try to brush or wash it out. The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips. By morning, most if not all of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop, and your hair will look and feel a hundred times better. You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive and four ounces is all you will need, no matter how much dandruff you have. This simple remedy never fails.

TO RELIEVE CATARRHAL DEAFNESS AND HEAD NOISES

If you have Catarrhal Deafness or head noises go to your druggist and get 1 ounce of "Parmit" (double strength), and add to it 1-4 pint of hot water and 4 ounces of granulated sugar. Take 1 tablespoonful four times a day. This will often bring quick relief from the distressing head noises. Clogged nostrils should be open, breathing becomes easy and the mucus stop dropping into the throat. It is easy to prepare, costs little and is pleasant to take. Any one who has Catarrhal Deafness or head noises should give this prescription a trial. T. J. Evans can supply you.—Advertisement.

STOP APPROACH OF KIDNEY DISEASE. DON'T BE ONE OF THOUSANDS IT KILLS EVERY YEAR

Get Dodd's Kidney Pills—The Guaranteed Remedy. Has Saved Many Thousands—But Be Sure It's Dodd's.

Statistics gathered from the official records at Washington show that deaths from Bright's Disease and other fatal kidney disorders have increased 70 per cent in the past few years. It is mostly due to the failure of people to realize that kidney trouble is actually a strong hold on them.

Immediately begin taking Dodd's Kidney Pills, the stimulating and wonderfully soothing kidney prescription, insist upon getting DODD'S as "DODD'S" is sold under guarantee of money back if it fails to relieve.

Remember the three "D's" in "DODD'S" for dandruff, disordered, diseased kidneys.

Something More Than Brokerage Service

You are getting one kind of service when you buy securities through a reputable brokerage firm and another kind when you deal with an experienced investment banking house, like The Geiger-Jones Co.

It is the broker's business to execute your orders promptly, without reference to what he may think about the wisdom of your purchase. He presumes you are experienced and know what you are doing, and that you have carefully weighed the likelihood of profit against the possibility of loss.

This is how our service differs from brokerage service. It is our business to make recommendations on which our customers may act if they wish. When we make such a recommendation, it is based on first-hand expert investigation and years of successful experience. Therefore, we are prepared to stand behind the recommendation and spare no pains to make sure that our reputation for sound judgment is maintained.

It is your desire to avoid unwise judgments, and place your funds in good, dividend-paying securities, with that kind of service behind them, send us your name and address and let us explain the principles that govern us in "The Selection of Investments."

DR. ROLLER HAS FINE RECORD AS CRACK ATHLETE

With an athletic record of many years acquired while in college and after leaving educational institutions, Dr. R. F. Roller professional wrestler comes here properly advertised as the most famous wrestler yet to be booked in Newark since Paul Bowser revived the game here nearly 18 months ago.

Dr. Roller while in DePaul University and the University of Pennsylvania, took part in most of all the branches of athletics in which a man of his weight could participate. He was of no slouch in any of the branches either. He devoted much of his time to a study of the wrestling game and after leaving school followed that sport for several years, during which he met the most famous heavyweights in the country. He claims to be the only wrestler who ever defeated Joe Stecher.

Roller Wears No Shoes On the Mat

DR. R. F. ROLLER.

Dr. R. F. Roller, who meets Paul Bowser and four other wrestlers here Thursday night, wears no shoes when appearing on the wrestling mat. He wears short trunks but his legs and feet are free from the handicap of apparel.

Bowser announced this morning that owing to an injury, Vance Wallace would not be one of the men to meet Dr. Roller. Prentner will take Wallace's place and Ed Conley will remain over for the match and be one of the five men to face the heavyweight. Bowser, John Heckeberry and Charles Metro will be the other wrestlers.

Our First National Road.
The first of our great national roads was the Cumberland road, which ran from the Potomac to the Mississippi. Starting from Cumberland, Md., it ran west through Maryland, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana and Illinois to its terminal point at the Mississippi opposite St. Louis. It was built by the United States government under the supervision of George Rogers Clark. In order to secure funds for the constant repairs necessary congress passed a bill in 1822 ordering the establishment of turnpikes, with gates and tolls. But President Monroe vetoed the bill on the ground that congress had no power to pass such a sweeping measure of internal improvement. Two years later he signed a somewhat similar bill, and the road received the needed appropriation. The last appropriation was made by congress in 1811. Parts of the old road are still in use.

Chicago, Jan. 9.—Fresh advances to date in the price of wheat failed to hold. Opening prices, which ranged from 54c to 1 1/2c higher with May at 1.85 1/2 to 1.90, and July at 1.54 1/2 to 1.59, were followed by a setback to well under yesterday's finish.
The close was weak, 1 1/2c to 2 1/2c net lower, with May at 1.85 1/2 to 1.8, and July at 1.51 to 1.51 1/2.
Corn reacted with wheat. After opening 1/2c off to 3/4c up, the market showed a slight general advance, but then underwent a material sag.
The close was unsettled at 7 1/2 to 1 1/4c net feeling.

Wall Street.
(Associated Press Telegram)
New York, Jan. 9.—Declines of nine points in General Motors and five in Ford worth were the only noteworthy feature of today's early trading. These were changes were irregular, fractions of a cent in minor falls and sporadic being offset by the heaviness of New Haven, Baldwin Locomotive and Industrial Alcohol. Pittsburgh and steel added a point to yesterday's substantial advances but other issues of like character were dull and sluggish. United States Steel fluctuated narrowly with other leaders. Dealings were on a very light scatter and limited local trading.

General Motors, which reflected disappointment at the one per cent quarterly dividend, increased its loss to 14 1/2 points and New Haven's decline 3 1/2 was associated with the indifferent statement of November earnings and increasing labor trouble. The movement elsewhere was unimportant, operations for the forenoon being the smallest of any regular session in months.
Steel was irregular and specialties were neglected. Atchafalaya and St. Paul registered one point and declines but Union Pacific and Reading were only occasionally quoted. The market improved at midday, coppers leading the rise. Bonds were irregular on very heavy offerings of international issues. Steel and oil issues led the list to but prices closed the day in the final hour. The closing was strong.

Coppers, Petroleum and related issues were the diverging features of today's broader market, prices in general responding to more favorable market sentiment. Sale approximated 600,000 shares.

KOPF MAY STAR FOR REDS NEXT SEASON

Shortstop Kopf.

Shortstop Kopf, a youngster picked up by the Cincinnati Reds last season, is going to be one of the stars of the league next summer, thinks Christy Mathewson. Kopf showed all sorts of promise in the work he did for the Reds last year and hit the ball in the games he had part in for an average well over .300. Connie Mack who had Kopf on trial declared that his only failing was an unwillingness to be told anything. Metty is just the boy to develop such a youngster.

"The Foolish Virgin."
Conway Tearle, who will be seen on the screen of the Auditorium theatre today and tomorrow in the role opposite Clara Kimball Young in her Selznick-Pictures production of "The Foolish Virgin," has the distinction of being the most sought-after leading man on the American stage. So great is the demand for the handsome and versatile Mr. Tearle's services in support of feminine stars that he has been seen in the last few years as the leading man for no less a galaxy of famous women of the stage than Ethel Barrymore, Grace George, Billie Burke, Viola Allen and Margaret Anglin.

Honor Thy Name.

Manager Fenberg will offer a big program for Friday in the Triangle master play, "Honor Thy Name," with Frank Keenan, Louise Glaum and Chas. Ray. This is said to be one of the best photo dramas turned out by the Triangle company. In addition to this a two-reel Keystone "The Feathered Nest" with Chas. Murray and the 11th episode of "The Crimson Stain Mystery" will be shown.

The Girl Without a Chance.

Have you seen a poor emigrant with his pitiful green tag on, trying to explain to some railroad conductor where he wanted to go? Did you note the gruff, surly manner with which the official answered the alien? Didn't you feel sorry for that stranger in a strange land, who could not even speak our language? Imagine the plight, then, of the poor Italian heroine in the play "The Girl Without a Chance," when she, in her ignorance, of our customs, falls into the hands of the white slave trust. Doesn't it afford abundant food for a great drama? It does, and all reports from other cities indicate that the author has taken full advantage of this theme. In addition to this most appealing heart story, the play is said to possess a wonderful comedy part. This splendid play, one of the real dramatic treats of the year, may be seen at the Auditorium theatre, Matinee and Night, Saturday, Jan. 13. No children under 16 admitted. Seats ready, Thursday.

"The Girl He Couldn't Buy."

Wholesome fun and thrilling melodrama are combined in "The Girl He Couldn't Buy," by summer Nichols, which is to hold the boards at the Auditorium, soon. The leading role is that of Hope Nelson, a beautiful and refined New York girl, who has suddenly been reduced to penury by the death of her father, and finds herself in a tenement rooming house with all kinds of pitfalls surrounding her. Wealthy and self-confident rascal, who was her father's business partner and brought him financial ruin, attempts to get her into his power. In her desperate difficulty, a protector appears in the person of a professional crackman. The unique manner in which the plot is worked out to its happy ending is characterized by a well known critic as "distinctly a dramatic triumph."

"Hello, Paris."

Too much cannot be said in advance of the new "Frenchie-Girl Show," "Hello, Paris," which is to be the attraction here at the Auditorium theatre for next Monday with matinee. It comes to this city with the reputation of entertainment and novelty that stamps it as a big winner, every inch of the way.

"Hello, Paris," this season has a remarkably strong cast, the personnel of which contains the names of

BROKER IS GUILTY OF WIFE MURDER
SAYS JURY VERDICT

Ossippi, N. H., Jan. 9.—A verdict of "guilty, with capital punishment," was returned last night against Frederick L. Small, former broker of Boston, who was charged with the murder of his wife, Florence A. Small.

The jury deliberated three hours. Small staggered for an instant as he heard the words of the foreman of the jury, but at once pulled himself together and maintained the composure which, with few exceptions, has marked his conduct from the moment he was arrested.

Turning to the newspaper men after the formalities of adjourning the court were observed, he said: "Gentlemen, I am innocent of this crime. I know no more about it than you do. I am awaiting the next move."

Under the laws of the state a verdict of "guilty with capital punishment" carries with it a sentence of death by hanging.

The murder of Mrs. Small, Sept. 24, 1916, occurred in a cottage at Mountain View. The woman had been beaten about the head, shot through the forehead and strangled by a cord before the house was destroyed by fire. But these evidences of the crime probably never would have been discovered had not the partly burned body dropped into a barrel of water in the basement.

Justice John Kivel asked Small if he had anything to say which might be of assistance to the jury in its deliberations. Small said he had nothing to say and that he was awaiting the verdict of the jury which was returned last night. "I have, your honor," said Small, "I know no more about the crime than you do. I am an innocent person."

Clerk Kenison then read the sentence in which Small was ordered by Judge Kivel, confined in state prison on until Jan. 15, 1918, when he is to

THIS STOPS HAIR
FROM FALLING OUT

Ever try to count the dead hairs in your comb and brush? They are nature's advance warning of future baldness and proof that the dangerous little dandruff germ is busy on your scalp.

Dr. Sangerbund, the famous Paris specialist, first discovered that dandruff and falling hair are caused by a microbe. Then came the discovery of the value of real Parisian Sage (liquid form) in destroying the dandruff germ and promptly preventing the further loss of hair. The effect of only three days' use of Parisian Sage is simply marvelous, and the American people have now awakened to the fact that dandruff is just as unnecessary as it is unhealthy, and that they can be quickly rid of it and save their hair by using a few ounces of Parisian Sage.

Parisian Sage is sold for not more than 50 cents a large bottle at drug and toilet counters everywhere. It is an ideal, daintily perfumed liquid, free from grease and stickiness, and will surely cause hair to grow soft, lustrous and really seem twice as abundant.

Our old friend Rheumatism is having his inning this year, and a few words of caution from one who knows all about it may not be amiss.

Wear rubbers in damp weather. Keep your feet dry; drink plenty of lemonade and avoid strong alcoholic drinks.

If rheumatism gets you or scalds, and you have sharp twinges, gnawing pain or swollen joints or muscles, you can get rid of all agony in just a few days by taking one-half teaspoonful of Rheuma once a day.

All Druggists know about Rheuma; it's harmless, yet powerful; cheap, yet sure, and a 50-cent bottle will last a long time. Ask T. J. Evans or any druggist.

LAST OF THE LIVING LINKS THAT CONNECT UNITED STATES OF TWENTIETH CENTURY WITH FRONTIER DAYS NEAR DEATH

GOV. COX

GRILLED AT PRESS SMOKER THIS MORNING BY COLUMBUS NEWSPAPER MEN.

Event Was Similar to Famous Gridiron Club Dinner at National Capitol

Columbus, O., Jan. 8.—There was a living of the famous Gridiron Club furnished several hundred visiting newspaper men at the Elks House late in the evening.

The plot of the play, acted by local newspaper men and amateur performers was written around the exhibition attributed to the new governor after his re-election to the effect that he intended to "play golf only during his second term."

Prior to the presentation of the play there was an experience meeting presided over by A. P. Sandles of Ottawa, in his capacity of editor, assisted by Lieutenant Governor Earl D. Bloom, who is editor of a paper at Bowling Green. Editors around the tables were called upon for short speeches and gently grilled as they essayed to respond.

The hilarity began when Governor Cox and his party entered the hall, coming from the Inaugural Ball at Memorial Hall. While the governor was addressing the audience he was interrupted by the entrance of the representatives of the Democratic film-flam corporation of Shadow Lawn, New Jersey, who had come to take moving pictures of the governor playing golf. Raising of a curtain disclosed a golf course with a view of the White House in the background.

Governor Cox and State Chairman William L. Finley were portrayed by newspaper men, the former attired in a highly accented golf suit and the latter made up as a caddy.

The task set for the counterfeiter was to drive a large ball conspicuously labeled "1920" into a small hole labeled "second term," being assured that upon completing this feat he could go to the club (White) house. Then followed a series of interruptions which served to introduce hits upon existing political conditions. General Andrew Jackson, mounted upon a charger, rode over the putting green and refused to pay heed to Cox's protests, insisting that January 8th was his day and that his memory was being slighted.

Contemptuously he asked Cox whom he was given to understand was a candidate for his office as president, whether he had ever fought the British.

"No, but I've fought the Blue Democracy under General Harvey Garber," was the reply.

To query whether he had ever fought the redskins he returned the answer that he "had fought the Blue Red Book," and when asked if he had opposed Nick Biddle and the national bank, he replied: "No, but the national and state banks played old Nick with me."

When the play, acted by local newspaper men and amateur performers was written around the exhibition attributed to the new governor after his re-election to the effect that he intended to "play golf only during his second term."

SPEECH

OF AMBASSADOR GERARD AT BERLIN DINNER WAS SIGNIFICANT SAY PAPERS.

See Change in Attitude of American Government Toward Teutons—Will Welcome Peace Effort.

Berlin, Jan. 8, via London, Jan. 9.—The Boersen Zeitung, Berlin's leading financial organ, seizes upon the dinner given to Ambassador Gerard by the American Association of Commerce and Trade as an opportunity to discuss peace again. It declares that the banquet had unusual importance and expresses almost enthusiasm at the cordial relations existing between the United States and Germany as it finds them in the expression of the speakers. The Saturday evening papers declare that Germany will welcome every support America may lend to the peace movement, "so long as it does not attempt to narrow or foil the acquisition of a peace worthy of Germany and the efforts of her fighters."

In its comment on the dinner the Boersen says that it is natural that Germany now looks differently upon an America "which has recovered from what may be termed its carouse over its rich war gains than on an America which Germany vainly attempts to arouse to a sympathetic understanding of her situation." The paper warns Americans, however, that they must not expect the German people to be deeply grateful for peace efforts, which it says, are actually inspired by America's own desires and needs for peace.

After saying that the banquet itself was far more important than an ordinary festivity the Boersen Zeitung makes the following comment on the speech of Ambassador Gerard:

"Such a speech at the present time is significant. We have always insisted that good relations between Germany and America were important. Ambassador Gerard's words at the present moment, in the presence of the most important German statesmen, industrial leaders, and business men, betoken that the leading circles in America understand our situation, that they do not ascribe guilt for the war to us and that they are seeking to hasten the end. It would be foolish to give the speech more importance than it has in view of the fact that our enemies have been able to draw a part of their strength from America during two years of the conflict but it would be unworthy of us to assume no more favorable attitude of the United States."

The Kreuz Zeitung adopts an entirely different tone and finds Ambassador Gerard's claim that good relations exist between Germany and the United States remarkable, quite remarkable. The paper then cites categorically some half dozen reasons which it considers cast doubt on the ambassador's claim. Among these are the delivery of munitions to the allies, the dismissal by Washington of German and Austrian diplomats and the opposition of the American government to submarine warfare.

LONDON INTERPRETS SPEECH.

London, Jan. 9.—The Manchester Guardian in its comment on Ambassador Gerard's speech in Berlin says it regards it as a plain warning to Germany.

Benefit at Lyric Theater.

Again Harry Elden, the manager of the Lyric theater has shown his willingness to help a worthy cause along by turning the "The Crook"
over to the benefit of the Nurses Division. Mr. Elden has procured the very best picture on the market for this occasion, "The Devils Bond Women." The Harmonious Glee

Club quartet has donated its services and will sing at the evening performance. This quartet needs no introduction as the public is aware of the splendid voices that these four young men possess. Prof. Stoner will sing at both afternoon and evening performances. The interest that the public is taking in this benefit is evidenced by the great number of tickets that are being sold in advance.

the Citizens Efficient Government

BUCKEYE BAND

MADE BIG HIT

IN COLUMBUS

Over 1,000 people from Licking county attended the inauguration at Columbus yesterday. The Baltimore & Ohio railway carried 500 passengers, the Ohio Electric 200 and the Pennsylvania 175. In addition scores of autos were driven to the capital city as weather conditions were ideal.

Quite a number from this city attended the reception to Governor Cox and daughter, held in the senate chamber, and afterwards attended the inaugural ball. Several were also present at the Press Smoker held at the Elk home. One team from Columbus last evening were crowded with Newarkites all of whom expressed themselves as having just had the best time possible.

The Buckeye band made a hit in the big parade yesterday afternoon.
Complimentary remarks were heard all along the line of march. Newark certainly has reason to feel proud of its Buckeye band and it surely helped put this city on the map yesterday by furnishing music of a high order. The band boys were an excellent team and they were not a bit tired with their music. The Licking county delegation made a creditable showing in the parade, in fact it was complimented by Governor Cox and state officials for the splendid marching of its members, making a showing equal to that of any other county in the state.

signed at the time Reitman was ar-

COURT HOLDS DOCTOR

MUST HAVE HEARING

BEFORE LICENSE REVOKED.

(Associated Press Telegram)
Columbus, Jan. 9.—The Ohio supreme court today held unconstitutional the medical act providing that a doctor's certificate can be revoked by the state medical board without a hearing. The decision was given in the case of Dr. A. K. Jewell, of Columbus, who resisted an attempt to take away his certificate.

The Manufacturers' Appraisal Co.
of Cleveland again lost out today in its attempt to force Franklin county (Columbus) to pay it $15,000 for a decennial reappraisal of property made in this county in 1910.

The court upheld the judgment of the Hamilton county court of appointing Gerhardt Fisher, a machinist in the employ of the Cincinnati Filtration plant and a provisional civil service appointee, holding that his term did not expire until he had failed to pass a non-competitive examination.

The court refused to allow John C. Heald, a Cleveland attorney, fees for bringing suit as a tax payer and prosecuting injunction proceedings against the Cuyahoga county budget commission. He asked for $12,000.

(Associated Press Telegram)

department of the Appleton high dressing the baby, according to approved scientific methods.

ATTEMPT TO WRECK TRAIN

(Associated Press Telegram)

men early today prevented what is believed to have been an attempt to wreck a Grand Rapids and Indiana railroad pay car 12 miles from here.
The workmen found a number of the plates tied on the railroad. Four men fled from the tracks as the workmen approached, it is claimed.
A short time after the tracks were cleared the pay car passed.

HARRY THAW ON

ASSAULT CHARGE

(Associated Press Telegram)
New York, Jan. 9.—Harry K.
Thaw was today indicted by the grand jury on three charges of assaulting Fred Grump, Jr., a high school boy of Kansas City, Mo.

A bench warrant was issued for Thaw's arrest.

The district attorney soon after the bench warrant for Thaw's arrest was issued received a telephone message from Philadelphia saying that George F. O'Byrnes, described as Thaw's bodyguard had been arrested in that city charged with aiding and abetting his employer.

Thaw is accused of enticing
Grump, 16 years old, from Long Beach, Calif., to this city and having assaulted him at a hotel here with a buggy whip on three different occasions.

Cruel Deception.

"How do you manage to keep your cook so long?"
"My husband has promised her that if she is working for us when we strike oil he will buy her an auto."
"But I did not know you had any oil prospects?"
"We haven't."—Houston Post.

His Report.

of the invitation to use this church for meditation and prayer?" a city verger was once asked.
"Yes," he replied, "I caught two of 'em at it the other day!"—Tit-Bits.

His Preference.

A rather critical old lady once said to Crawford, "Have you ever written anything, Mr. Crawford, that will live after you are gone?"
"Madame," Crawford replied politely, "what I am trying to do is to write something that will enable me to live while I am here."—Christian Register.

A Suspicion.

"Why is George Washington described as 'First in war and first in peace?'"
"I dunno," replied Senator Sargson. "I suspect somebody was trying to square him with both the preparedness people and the pacifists."

Those Dear Girls.

A Prescription.

foolish for me to marry a girl who was intellectual inferior?"
Dolly—"Not that foolish—impossible."—Cleveland Leader.

Quite Natural.

"Old friends are best." "I know still, we all like to make new friends. We can chuck a bluff before them for a while. The old friends have our number."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

As It Is Nowadays.

Teacher—"If a man gets four dollars for working eight hours a day, what would he get if he worked ten hours a day?"
Johnny—"Ten hours a day. He'd get a call-down from de union."

POLICE

CAPTAINS AND LIEUTENANTS IN CHICAGO CHARGED WITH VICE GRAFT.

Police Chief Healey and Lieut. White Arrested and Others Will be Taken Into Custody.

(ASSOCIATED PRESS TELEGRAM)

Chicago, Jan. 9.—Further arrests were promised today by Maclay Hoyne, state's attorney, in his investigation into an alleged police ring, whose vice manipulations, he charged, have netted thousands of dollars annually.

Mr. Hoyne charged that "a great majority of the police captains and lieutenants" of Chicago are involved in a scandal which resulted in the arrests late last night of Charles C. Healey, chief of police, Martin White, a police lieutenant, and three others on warrants charging extortion, conspiracy and bribery.

Following Chief Healey's arrest and subsequent release on bonds of $100,000, Mr. Hoyne and several of his assistants worked until almost daylight interrogating possible witnesses and examining documents, said to contain evidence.

Mr. Hoyne declined to make public any of the alleged evidence he had seized but asserted that he attached much significance to a green-covered book said to have been found in the possession of Lieutenant White. This book contained a carefully kept index of several hundred vice resorts, gambling houses and saloons in the Lake street police precinct. Opposite some of the names were figures and opposite others notations.

Among these notations were "can be raided," "chief's," "three ways."

"The green book" will play an important part in our investigation," Mr. Hoyne said. "We had known of its existence in some form or other for some time but did not expect to get it in looking over the list marked 'three ways.' I find amounts given range from $20 to $150. To me 'three ways' means the division made of this money."

Lieutenant White, Mr. Hoyne said, insisted that the book was merely a record kept of the disreputable places in the police district of which he assumed command several weeks ago.

Chief Healey, whose resignation was presented to the mayor last month, effective January 1, the date being extended until January 11 that he might be in office over New Year's eve when violations of the saloon closing law were expected, said today he had placed the entire matter in the hands of his attorney.

The list of alleged shady hotels, gambling houses and resorts, together with cryptic notations on the pages of the green book were regarded today by the prosecutor as clearly proving allegations of wrong doing lodged against the police.

The little book enumerated the places under headings: "Hotels," "saloons," "gambling," "chief's list," "can be raided," "can't be raided," "transient houses," and "disorderly houses."

In front of addresses were figures such as 40 and 150 and following addresses so distinguished were additional notes reading "one way," "two ways," or "three ways." These notations were held by the state's attorney to show the amount of protection money paid by the places indicated.

The interpretation placed on the "chief's list," by the prosecutor was that there was no division of payments in this list, they all going to the head of the police department.

The "three way" division, according to the prosecutor meant that the protection money was to be divided between Thomas Costello, classed as the go-between; "Mike de Pike" Heiler, known as the "boss of the west side levee," and William Skidmore, a saloon keeper, who were arrested with Lieut. White.

Confessions have been obtained from some of the men now in custody. State's Attorney Hoyne announced today. He declined to reveal names.

Special Meetings at First Church Continue 2 Weeks

The two weeks meeting of the First Presbyterian church have commenced. Rev. Mr. Lawther of Belaire has been delayed somewhat but will be present Wednesday night.

Last night Dr. Hazlett preached to a fair sized congregation and tonight the meeting will be in charge of the laymen and two men from the Presbyterian church of Coshocton have been secured.

This arrangement is made in exchange for the services of one of Newark's laymen last week. Rev. Mr. Boyd of Coshocton assures the local church that these two men are excellent speakers.

The laymen's point of view of religious truths sometimes differ from those expressed by the ministry, but never-the-less are orthodox and well defined.

HUMANE SOCIETY SAVES MONEY BY CHANGE IN PLAN

At the annual meeting of the Licking County Humane society held last night the annual report of the board of directors was submitted and an audited statement of receipts and expenditures was made. The report shows an increased efficiency in the society's operation under the new plan adopted nine months ago.

The society reports a gratifying response on the part of the people of the city and county in the educational work. Children throughout the county are being organized into junior societies.

The auditor's report shows $1,391.08 received and $695.91 expended. The merging of the humane society with the welfare bureau has effected a saving in operating expenses, according to the report.

WARM WEATHER BREAKS HIGH COAL PRICES

(ASSOCIATED PRESS TELEGRAM) Chicago, Jan. 9.—Hard coal was selling in Chicago today at from $1.67 to $2.00 a ton less than a week ago, despite previous predictions of a rise in prices. Bituminous coal, quoted today at $5.50 a ton, was selling at from $1.00 to $1.50 less than a week ago. Dealers asserted that warm weather caused the slump in prices.

Although it seemed that the local coal shortage practically was overcome, officers of the federal department of justice continued an investigation into the coal market.

CLOTH FROM NETTLE MAY BE NEW PRODUCT

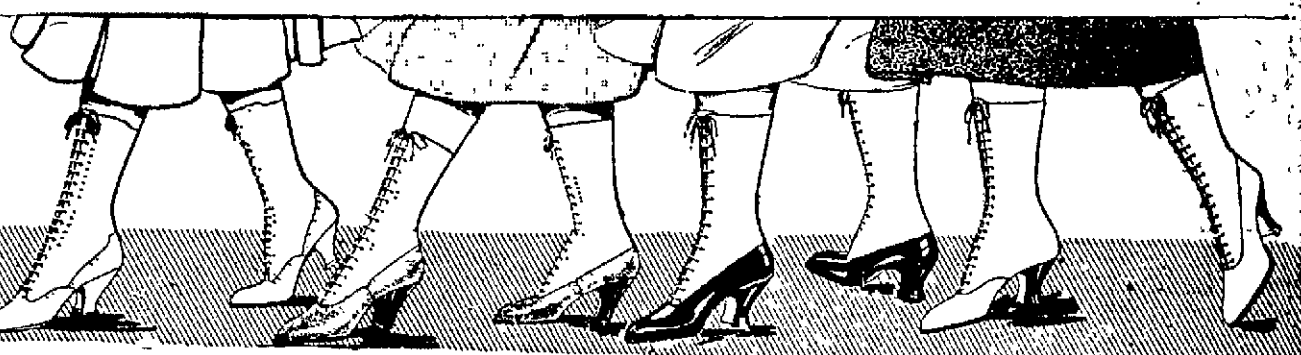

(ASSOCIATED PRESS TELEGRAM) Washington, January 9.—Perfection of a method for making cloth out of the fibre of the stinging nettle, it is claimed, may make Germany and Austria independent of cotton imports. Reports to the department of commerce telling of the invention of the method of Dr. Richter of Vienna say that samples of the cloth prove that fabric produced from the nettle fibre can be used for any purpose to which pure cotton fabrics heretofore have been put. Experiments already conducted in districts along the Danube indicate that the lands are well adapted to the cultivation of the nettle. Ten million acres of land, it is declared, not now utilized, could be used for this purpose.

71 BABIES UNDER 5 YEARS DIE HERE DURING LAST YEAR

The death rate in Newark in 1916 increased 94 per cent over that of 1915, which is comparatively small in comparison with the increase in some other cities from which reports are available.

The report of Dr. W. H. Knauss, health officer shows a total of 399 deaths last year, and 352 in 1915, an increase of 47. The increase in deaths per 1,000 inhabitants was from 12.64 to 13.32.

There is shown an increase in deaths from pneumonia from 25 to 30, from cancers and malignant tumors from 14 to 30, while there was a decrease in deaths from consumption from 36 to 33, Bright's disease from 12 to 12 and heart disease from 30 to 25.

The table of infantile mortality shows that 71 died under the age of 5 years. Of these 26 died under one week of age; 5 from one to two weeks, 16 under six months; 7 under one year; 8 from one to two years; 9 from two to five years.

Mr. Price Shows Where Farmers Can Profit By Market

Warren, Jan. 9.—Several hundred Trumbull county farmers have decided to establish a market in Warren where they can sell their produce. This action was taken at a recent meeting which was called for the purpose of studying better market facilities.

If this is successful, markets will be opened in Niles and Girard, and thus produce will be disposed of locally instead of taking it to the Youngstown market. Results that could be obtained through better marketing facilities was the theme of the address given by Homer C. Price, dean of the agricultural department of Ohio State university. His address was followed by a talk by former Trumbull County Agent M. O. Bugby. Bugby urged farmers to get together and cater to home markets. He emphasized the impossibility of farmers antagonizing merchants.
